Smarter journeys for a changeable county

Koll2020

Koll2020 is a project aimed at developing public transportation in the county of Västernorrland in the northern part of Sweden. The project is a cooperation between nine municipalities and authorities.

PROJECT GOALS

- Increased number of public transportation journeys by 2019 compared to 2015
- Increased share of public transportation journeys by 2019 compared to 2015
- Improved accessibility in public transportation by 2020 compared to 2015
- Optimization of existing public transports
- Reduced need for taxi in special public transportation

WORK PACKAGES

The project is divided into four work packages:

1. Investigation & analysis - building a knowledge platform for future development
2. Information & communication - easy access information for travellers
3. Investments in infrastructure - bus stops, optical ticket readers, bus-only streets
4. Innovative public transports - testing new ways to offer public transportation in rural areas

There are many benefits of increasing public transportation. Reduced climate effects, improved urban air quality, decreased congestion and increased labor regions are examples of such benefits.

In Västernorrland public transportation has a low share of total journeys. By investigating how public transportation can be improved, improving travel information, investing in public transportation infrastructure and testing new innovative ways to offer public transportation, the shareholders of the project hope to increase the number of journeys made by public transportation.
